

Vocational Training School of Kuron celebrates 1 Year!

Thursday last week was the 1st of May and the international Labour Day. On this day it was also one year since the Vocational Training School of Kuron first opened.

Staff and students from our school celebrated this anniversary by promoting the school, selling products and demonstrating handicraft skills in the village of Napil. In the market put up by VTS outside Napil different student -made products was put out for sale. Many of the products got sold to locals and workers in HTPV and VTS received new orders for making boxes, knives, beds, doors and other items that the local people wanted to buy. The local chief bought one of the stoves and was very positive about having VTS visiting Napil regularly in the future.

Personally, I was very happy on this day and I thank the staff and students for using their holiday to promote and celebrate our school. I could see that it really had an impact to bring the VTS out to the village and the people.

One year after the school opened there are still many challenges, but what we saw on the 1st of May was that there is a business potential in the area and this gives great hope for the future of the school.

Enjoy the pictures from this great day!
